

A Shared Vision

Since 1997, donors and supporters just like you have invested in Friends of Harbors, Beaches and Parks (FHBP) to ensure the natural lands, waterways, and beaches of Orange County are protected forever. We are deeply grateful for that support. You've really made an impact.

As FHBP looks to the future, we want to be sure you know that you can help protect our existing parks and natural lands, as well as help create new protected areas by including FHBP in your will or estate plan.

It is less complicated than you may think. This future support includes making a bequest or including FHBP as a beneficiary. We've outlined some details you may want to consider and offer sample language below.

An Alignment of Values

Because you've already chosen to support FHBP in the past, we know our values align with yours. You too believe that our natural areas, and the plants and animals in them, should be protected forever with appropriate and well managed public access. FHBP has leveraged our credibility, expertise, and relationships to save many hundreds of acres and scores of species from development.

For several decades, FHBP has been an umbrella group for Orange County non-profits and community organizations. Some of our accomplishments include:

- Creating the Green Vision Map;
- Uniting voices for conservation;
- Working with non-traditional partners to protect and restore landscapes; and,
- Negotiating the inclusion of a mitigation program that funds conservation up to $243M

We plan to continue this work into the future. Including an organization in your will whose mission and values align with yours is one of the simplest and most straightforward ways to give.

While you are under no obligation to inform of us of your decision to include FHBP in your estate plan, please consider letting us know at: GreenVision@FHBP.org.

Creating A Conservation Legacy

Should you choose to dedicate a gift upon your death and create a conservation legacy with FHBP in your will, trust, or by beneficiary designation, the language can be as simple as:

I give, bequeath, and devise a sum of _____ to Friends of Harbors, Beaches and Parks, a non-profit California corporation, located at P.O. Box 9256, Newport Beach, CA.

Please consider the following language:

- Specific amount. The donor states a specific dollar amount (as shown above).
- Percentage amount. The donor indicates a percentage of the estate (such as, "10% of my estate to...")
- Remainder amount. An amount determined after all specific bequests have been paid (such as, "After all specific bequests have been paid, I give, bequeath, and devise the remainder of my estate, including real and personal property to...")

You may also designate FHBP as a beneficiary of your life insurance policy, bank account, IRA, 401(k), or other retirement account.
